RESUME' SUMMARY

Demonstrated ability to administer a comprehensive academic unit.

- Program innovation including the integration of instructional technology and information science with library science, development of joint degree programs, diverse initiatives in continuing education.
- Effectiveness in recruitment and student affairs.
- Involvement of faculty in all affairs of the unit.
- Successful in external contacts with accrediting groups and the professional community.

Extensive experience as a teacher and practitioner.

- Taught at all levels of education including a substantial number of years teaching undergraduate and graduate level courses in library science, education and instructional technology.
- Significant experience as head of school libraries for the state's largest school district (staff of 51 professionals and clerks). Activities included the integration of the library media concept, the initiation of a successful district and state library media demonstration project and general management concerns.

Continuing contact with the professional community.

- Long term membership on Council of Director's, ALISE and the Executive Board, CLA.
- Presently working with two major organizations -Connecticut State Library and Connecticut State Department of Education- on the development of summer institutes.
- Invited speaker and panelist for various state and regional conferences. Fall, 1984, speaker at the joint NELA/NEEMA Annual Conference, Sturbridge, MA.
- Diversified consulting activities relating to curriculum, media utilization, marketing and library media facilities. Recently involved in proposals to renovate the New Haven Public Library and the library media center, Trumbull High School, Trumbull, CT.

A sustained record of publications/research and grant writing.

- Books have been widely used in library education and by practitioners. They represent four distinct types -textbook, casebook, bibliography and reader. In content, books deal with library management, AV utilization in libraries and law enforcement.
- The most recent grant obtained was for a minority fellowship at the sixth year level. The most important grant was obtained from Southern's BOT and provided for a full-time faculty member in instructional technology.
