Letter of Agreement

Western Connecticut State University (WCSU) and The Jane Goodall Institute (JGI) are pleased to enter into this affiliation to foster environmental studies and education.

Western Connecticut State University would provide:

1. An on-campus office from which JGI staff would work to develop this program and related materials in consultation with Western Connecticut State University faculty and students.
2. Other facilities as needed for the purpose of accommodating Dr. Goodall's appearances in connection with the Center's activities.
3. Collaboration with The Jane Goodall Institute to raise funds from area businesses, individuals and foundations to support the programs.

The Jane Goodall Institute would provide:

1. The services of a full-time Director of the Center.
2. An appearance by Dr. Jane Goodall at least once each semester to meet informally with participating faculty and students.
3. An appearance by Dr. Jane Goodall at least once each semester to deliver a public lecture, ticket proceeds from which would be set aside by JGI to fund joint WCSU/JGI programs.
4. Collaboration with Western Connecticut State University to raise additional funds from area businesses, individuals and foundations to support the programs.

Additional goals include the development of teacher training workshops for continuing education credit, and the organization and implementation of environmental education seminars.

All academic publications will make reference to JGI, WCSU and any/all contributions by WCSU students and/or faculty, as well as to financial sponsors of the Center. The Jane Goodall Institute would retain the copyrights to published materials.

Under the auspices of the appropriate university department(s) The Jane Goodall Student Assistantship Awards will be established. Two student assistantships will be awarded per semester during the first two years of the JGI/WCSU association subject to available funds. These assistantships will be reviewed by both JGI and WCSU at the end of two years.
